The State library, rich in so many volumes devoted to Virginia and Virginiana, contains a book compiled by Udolpho Wolfe devoted entirely to the "Grand Civio and Military Demonstration in Honor of the Removal of the Remains of James Monroe, Fifth President of the United States, from New York to Virginia."

ginia."

Mr. Wolfe, who is a Virginian, "the son of a citizen coldier of the Old Dominion, feventh Regiment, the New York National Guard, which was the escort of honor of the remains from New York to Rich-al Guard, which was the escort of honor of the remains from New York to Richmond.

It is an interesting fact that neither the body of President Monroe or his wife were destined to rest undisturbed in the first grave which held their bodies. The fifth President died in the city of New York July 4, 1831, at the residence of his son-in-law, Samuel L. Gouveneur, and his remaint were put in a vault in the Second Street or Marble Cemetery.

He was the third President of the United States to die on July 4th. Adams and Jeffarson being the other two who passed away seven years before. In 1858, twenty-saven years after Monroe's death and one hundred years after Monroe's death and one hundred years after his birth, his remains by an act of the Virginia Législiture and with the consent of Samuel L. Gouveneur. Jr., grandson and only male lineal descendant, were brought to Richmond on the steamer Jamestown, and with elaborate coremonies, reinterred in the tomb in Hollywood. Ray, Charles H. Read, then pastor of the United, now Wirst Presbyterian, Church, conducted the devotional service at the grave, and Governor Henry A. Wise delivered an address. President Monroe's wife had alieady been dead several years and buried at Oak Hill, Loudourn county, when he died. That accounts for his living in New York with his son-in-law. He was very poor during the closing years of his life. Some one has remarked, applying it to him: "To handle millions and die poor, that is virtue."

It is an interesting fact possibly all do not remember, that Monroe lived in Richmond when a boy and went to school. Interesting also is it that he boarded at the "Old Stone House," now called "Washington" Headquarters," and almost without doubt the first house of any consequence ever built in the confines of the present Richmond.

President of Washington and Lee Tells of the Conditions.

President George H. Denny, of Washington and Lee University, has written an open letter in regard to the published reports concerning the existence of typhold fever in Lexington, in which he says:

The town of Lexington has an elevation of 1,000 feet above sea level, and is noted for its healthful and invigorating climate. It is abundantly supplied with pure water flowing directly into the town pipes from mountain springs several miles distant, and its natural drainage is perfact. The existing system of sewerage is perhaps better than that of any other town in Virginia of equal size. In an area of one square mile there are approximately eight miles of sewer pipes. The air is pure, healthful and invigorating, and the weather generally fair and mild. In addition to these points of advantage there is an exceptionally competent. Board of Health.

The average annual death rate, estimated for four years and taken from the official records, was four whites and six in many towns, a common rate.

During the early portion of October there were developed a number of cases of typhold fever, and it was deemed proper that the town authorities should tobe expeditious action to check it. These gentlemen were fully equal to the occasion, and without delay summoned the most expert American authorities to examine the situation was anything like so serious as reported must be denied. The cases of fever have been, with very rare exceptions, of the mildest type; and in a population of over 4,000, only one white person has died from this cause throughout the entire summer and fall to this day.

It is also a fact that the several college cases, with one exception, developed

It is also a fact that the several col-It is also a fact that the several con-lege cases, with one exception, developed simultaneously aout the 14th of October, indicating, so far as these cases are con-cerned, a temporary condition, which has disappeared.

COLLEGE TO PLAY WILLIAM AND MARY

Rattling Foot-Ball Game is Expected at Broad-Street Park To-morrow.

The Richmond College team had hard practice against the second team yester-day. The second team was strengthened by several of the first squad and gave the college a good fight, at one time carrying the bal from their own forty-yard line to the college's twenty-five yard mark, on flerce line bucks by Kenney, inne to the college's twenty-nee yard mark, on fierce line buckt by Kenney. Rollins and Bowen, but there they lost the ball on a fumble, and Captain Smith's trutty toe undid all their hard work. Richmond College has been working along fixed lines this year, the plan being to have the team at its greatest strength for the final game with Randolph-Macon. Everything else has been sacrificed to accomplish this, and if Richmond wins on the list all hands will be satisfied. A comparison of scores made by the two teams is slightly in Richmond's favor, but this will be offset by the fact that the Ashland team has been entirely reorganized, and since then has played a constantly improving game, as was shown conclusively by their game with Columbian University.

After the game the Washingtonians were divided in opinion as to the probable winner, for they claimed that, by getting some fresh men down from the capital they had strengthened their team so much that they could have beaten Richmond by a large acore than their pality 6 to 0 against Randolph-Macon. In this game the remarkable feature was the strong brace taken by Ashland in the second half, when they threatened their heavier opponent's goal the whole time.

their heavier opponent's goal the whole time.

To-morrow Richmond College will line up against William and Mary, and the critics are going there to size up their play and compare them with the Ashland boys, who played the same team two weeks ago.

The William and Mary boys, with characteristic pluck, have strengthened themselves, and declare they proposed to let ho team have a walkover with them.

Their defeat by Randolph-Macon did them a world of good, for several old players who would not train before, have since come out.

Since that game they have not played a regular match, but have spent all their time in hard practice in preparation for this game.

HON. HENRY E. LEE TO BE SEATED TO-DAY

The House Committee on Privileges and elections, at a meeting held yestel day afternoon, decided to recommend to day that the House grant the petitions of Hon. Honry E. Lee, of Nottoway, that he be declared entitled to the seat left vacant by the resignation of Hon. R. G. Southall, of Amelia, for the district composed of the counties of Amelia and Nottoway. It will be recalled that owing to an oversight in the printing of the tickets used at the recent election it was not specifically stated that Mr. Lee was a candidate for both the long and short terms, only the words, "For the House of Delegates," having been used.

The Board of State Canvassers did not feel that they had the authority to is-

The Board of State Canvassers du not reci that they had the authority to issue Mr. Lee a certificate for the short term, and so it was withheld.

The committee felt sure that it was the clear intention of the voters to elect Mr. Lee for both terms, evidence having been proven on this line. The report of the committee will be adopted by the House to-day, and Mr. Lee will at once take the oath.
